WE NOMINATE

Gregory Porphyrievich Tschebotarioff, internationally known for his contributions to the science of soil mechanics and often as interested in the affairs of the American Historical Association as he is in the publications of fellow scientists and engineers. In the week ahead this 65-year old Princetonian, recently retired from Princeton University's engineering faculty, will earn new laurels as the author of an absorbing narrative, "Russia, My Native Land" ("A U.S. Engineer Reminisces and Looks at the Present"), in which he painstakingly reconstructs "the half-century plus of my conscious life."

This unusual volume, representing years of preparation and some 18 months of highly intensive writing, might be called a "memoir with a purpose." Tschebotarioff's framework of personal experiences, based on his family life in Imperial Russia, his World War I service with a Don Cossack artillery unit, the globe-shaking impact of the Russian Civil War and "Emigration and 'Forty Years After,'" grew out of what he terms the "direct duty of American citizens of Russian origin not to remain silent when they witness systematic and deliberate misinformation of American public opinion on subjects concerning Russia which affect world peace."

In the foreword to this autobiography, certain to rank high on the Princeton Community's best-reading lists, scholar-diplomat George F. Kennan, a long-established authority on the Soviet Union, stresses Americans' "real and serious failures of understanding" of Russia Past and Present. "It is a good thing," Kennan notes, that "the available memoir literature should now be supplemented by the reminiscences of one who has managed to combine a devoted and constructive attitude toward his American citizenship of later years with memories of a Russian boyhood and youth in which the more positive aspects of pre-revolutionary Russia come fully to the fore. . . ."

Tschebotarioff, as outspoken in political matters as he is in the field of engineering education, does a devastating job on this country's so-called Captive Nations Law with which he became engrossed following his return from a 1959 visit to the Soviet Union with a high-level engineering delegation. He stresses that this law, unanimously passed by Congress in 1959, dramatizes America's lack of knowledge about Russia in that it commits the United States not only to the re-establishment of bona fide nations but also pledges the "freedom and independence" of two never-existent countries, Cossackia and Idel-Ural, both of which were dreamed up 20 years ago by Nazi propagandists.

The emigration from "My Native Land" carried Tschebotarioff to Egypt, Germany and France before he was "called to" Princeton in 1937. He had completed his scientific training in Germany and at the time of his initial appointment as Director of Princeton's Soil Mechanics Laboratory had divided eight years between the Egyptian Ministry of Public Works and the Egyptian University. Director of major research programs and author of standard works in his areas of specialization, he has been widely sought over the years as a consultant on soil and foundation engineering problems of almost every conceivable nature.

For seeking to bring about a better, more realistic understanding between this country and Russia; for strengthening his human document by pruning the sweeping generalities that all too often mar such publications; for looking to the future and a continuing movement toward sanity in international relations; he is our nominee as

FUND TO MAKE SURVEY
Agency by Agency. Year by year, Princeton grows. Population inches upward. More families move to town and need houses. More children come with them and need schools. And more people need the kind of help the United Community Fund Agencies give.

Just as it costs money to build the new schools Princeton needs for its newcomers, so it costs to provide more Visiting Nurses and Red Cross help and child guidance for all the people who weren't here five or ten years ago.

School boards must prove to the voters that they need more money to build schools and run them. The United Fund must prove that its agencies are vital to community welfare. In each case there are always constituents who say, each year, "What? More money for schools?" A bigger United Fund goal? Where is it all going to stop?

The budget committee of the United Fund has been worried for some time about the fact that agencies keep asking for more money than they need. And trustees think that they can realistically hope to raise.

How Much? The 1965 goal is $2 million. Before 1964, Fund goals were leaping up by about 15% each year. The increases including new agencies and new areas. (Red Cross, for example, is entering its third year of cooperation with the Fund.)

For 1965, Girl and Boy Scouts are up about $2,000 each, the Princeton Nursery School on Lehigh Avenue and the Visiting Nurses are up about $2,000 also. The Home-maker Service, on the other hand, is down $300. And the YMCA down about $400. The total 1965 campaign goal is $383,265.

With all this in mind, The United Fund has decided to set a long-range survey. Actually, the survey will be made by the Council of Community Services, but the Fund will pay the bill.

or president of the Council of to refer its children to Child Community Services, will dis-Guidance if necessary. Guidance is necessary. "I will be the survey, and will organize its beginning with a communication. Lines of Fund Council steering committee of seven. They will be ment being long by a sta-maintenance," Mr. Coley said. "Some of this duplication could be avoided if agencies could have a study panel chairman or a study relations chair-man."

"Positive" Study. After a time, this temporary committee will turn over the survey to the officials Citizens Survey Committee, which will conduct the survey and make the final report. Due next June, it will be a long-range plan for health, welfare and recreation services in the Princeton United Fund area.

"It is a 'positive' survey. We are not seeking criticism of my agency," asserted William G. Coley, executive director of the United Fund. "The real work will start after that report is in, and we begin to implement its suggestions."

Every agency in the United Fund will scrutinize itself in a "self-study." Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, The Association for Retarded Children, the USO and even the Council of Community Services and the United Fund itself will peer deeply and intently into the mirror.

Questionnaires will be drawn up for agencies to answer. There will be three Study Panels, one for Health, one for Welfare and one for Education, and they will help an agency's self-study committee assemble the information asked for in the questionnaire.

That Long, Long Look. "Maybe an agency hasn't taken a good hard look at itself for a long time," Mr. Coley suggested. "Maybe it's duplicating the work of another agency in some way. Maybe its administration could be tightened up and made more efficient. The survey doesn't mean you're asking for too much money," but it does mean how well are you doing?"

For example, the survey will find out exactly how much it costs to send a Visiting Nurse out on a call, and how Princeton stacks up against other similar communities in the number of girls who belong to the Girl Scouts.

Many agencies seem to overlap, and the survey will sort out those that do and try to keep their functions separate.

One agency of the Fund is the Child Guidance Center. Perhaps another agency, its work expanding more and more as Princeton grows, finds itself dealing with disturbed young people. Duplication like this will be uncovered, Mr. Coley pointed out, and the agency concerned will be told.

Mr. Coley emphasized, "but I want to emphasize this for trends, rates, the average and so on.

Probably the new figures collected in the course of Borough and Township school censuses will be used, Mr. Coley indicated. The research panel will also pour through management magazines looking for economic indexes that will give a picture of the area, and comparably, of others, showing what Princeton could support in the way of health-welfare recreation agencies.

"We also want to know something about the ability of people to cope financially with their own problems," Mr. Coley said. "This will be part of the survey, too."

A team of consultants under the direction of the Institute of Community Studies of the United Community Funds and Councils of America will give professional studies to the study. The Institute is a non-profit service established for the purpose of helping communities solve their problems.

"We will be able to buy the services of a team of consultants to fit our needs and professional consultants is not yet known precisely.

Survey Cost. The cost of the United Fund survey will begin with about $5,000 which it will take to get the program launched, provide clerical help and get the paper-work done.
The amount charged by the professional consultants is not yet known precisely.

Incidentally, Mr. Coley believes that one of the most important things the survey can do is — educate.

"We hope the various boards that run the agencies will learn more, in depth, about the way their agencies run," he said.
So far, the official Citizens Survey Committee has not been named. The temporary steering committee consists of Robert P. Dongo, president of the United Community Fund, Paul E. Orr Jr., chairman of the Fund's Social Planning and Research Committee, Jackson P. English Jr., Mrs.
Richard Schmitt, Mrs. J.

ices, H. Philip Mims and Mr.

"BEAT GOLDWATER!"

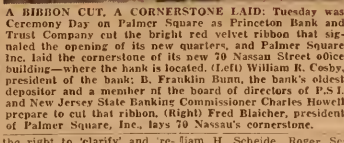

Group Forms Here. An independent political organization, with offices at 195 Nassau Street, has been formed to work for the defeat of Senator Barry Goldwater as President. Called the Independent Voters for Johnson, and with headquarters at Newark and Plainfield, the group plans to establish 250 local clubs throughout the state in the next few weeks.

the Johnson-Humphrey ticket only, not for Democratic candidates for other offices. With Miss Lee Imbrie serving as executive secretary of the Princeton branch, it urges inquiries from all those interested.

"The Republican Party has been captured by a group of political adventurers," the organization's statement continues, "who are indifferent to democracy's aspirations; they equate the quest for international peace with cowardice; quarters all in Newark and Plainfield, the group plans to establish 250 local clubs throughout the state in the next few weeks."

"They mock the historic objectives of Jefferson, Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson. The Princeton states that supporters would stifle discussion by others will be asked to work for it, but reserve to themselves the right to "clarify" and re-William H. Scheide, Roger Sec-clarify the contradictory statements of their nominee, Senator Goldwater."

A BILION CUT, A CORNERSTONE LAID: Tuesday was Ceremony Day on Palmer Square as Princeton Bank and Trust Company cut the bright red velvet ribbon that signaled the opening of its new quarters, and Palmer Square Inc. laid the cornerstone of its new 70 Nassau Street office building—where the bank is located. (Left) William R. Cosby, president of the bank; B. Franklin Bunn, the bank's oldest depositor and a member of the board of directors of P.S.I. and New Jersey State Banking Commissioner Charles Howell prepare to cut that ribbon. (Right) Fred Blischer, president of Palmer Square, Inc., lays 70 Nassau's cornerstone.

The group says that "Goldwater extremism permits of no complacency on our part. It has already misled too many of our fellow Americans; it must be defeated. We invite you to join us in our effort to cut this end."

The organization lists among its trustees and members "Independents, voters who put principle above party and who support many of the foreign and domestic policies" of the present administration; also, "Republicans, estranged from our party by repeated appeals to extremism, racism and nuclear recklessness;" and "Democrats, alarmed by the ominous shadow of reaction."

The group says it will spell out "what Goldwater's philosophy, or lack thereof, means for our nation." And, as its first objective, it will concentrate on the registration of voters. The deadline for registering in New Jersey is September 24. And, it points out, independent voters constitute 30% of the total in the state.

Officers of the Independent Voters for Johnson include these from the Princeton area: Stringfellow Barr, chairman pro tem; James Imbrie, vice-chairman; Dr. Paul Tillet, secretary; Jackson P. English, treasurer, and Mrs. English, assistant treasurer.

Other trustees include the following Princeton area residents: J. Lionberger, Davis, Dean Ernest Gordon, Gen. Edward Greenbaum, Thomas B. Hartmann, Dr. Erich Kahler, George Felletieri, Mrs. Wilson, H. Scheide, Roger Sec-clarify the contradictory statements of their nominee, Senator Goldwater."

Mr. Jones told police that he was driving on Washington Road and as he approached the Faculty Road traffic light he started to "gear down" because the machine had no brakes. As he did so, he continued, the vehicle stalled. Since the steering mechanism is hydraulically operated, it became inoperable when the motor stopped.

To help slow the mover down, Mr. Jones told police, he lowered its blade. It first struck a traffic control box, crossed the Faculty road intersection, hit a fence and continued on the grass for 50 feet before coming to rest. Police said two traffic lights, a control box and pole, eight feet of curbing, six feet of rail fence and a traffic sign were damaged.

On Monday afternoon, Mrs. Emily L. Butler, 53, 28 Marion Road W., driving on a permit, told police she became nervous over a car which was following too closely.

As she attempted to turn onto Ewing Street from Route 206, she lost control and hit a pole, damaging the entire front of her car. She and her husband, Richard N. Butler, 50, were slightly injured.

Bicyclist Bill James Miller, 11, 7 Lytle Street, was struck and injured by a car Thursday as he and three other boys were cycling on Mount Lucas Road, not far from the intersection of Cherry Valley Road. Miller was taken to Princeton Hospital, X-rayed and treated for contusions of the right leg. He was admitted for further observation.

The driver, Charles A. Faherty, 19, of Hopewell, told police after he rounded a sharp curve he saw four cyclists riding abreast of each other. He applied his brakes, he said, but was unable to avoid skidding into the Miller youth. The roadway at that point, police reported, is only 17 feet wide.

The other boys, James Scudder, 14; Charles Swain, 14, both of John Street, and Harvey Miller, 13, Clay Street, said they were being chased by a dog at the time. They also reported that young Miller failed to see the Faherty car. Police made no charges.

THE SONGS the same, the singer is different. "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?" was an early '30's lament. Now, it's the banker instead of the bum who's asking the question. What with the growth in population, vending machines and "other developments" (meaning, we assume, inflation and U. S. Mint undercalculation), coin shortage in Princeton and elsewhere is acute, says The American Bankers Association. So if you're one of those who've been stuffing mattresses with change, please use bills instead. Get the hard dough back in circulation. . . and, anyway, paper money is softer.

PRINCETON has two kinds of summer. As humid and hot as the Lower Amazonian jungle, or as arid and hot as Death Valley. This year, it's been the Death Valley bit. . . Last rain of any consequence was back on July 13. None yet in September.

When the drought is broken by a couple of hurricanes, or by some other "temperate zone" fol-de-rol, chances are good that spring shrubs and trees will bloom this fall in instead of next spring. That means little bloom next spring. What's more, many shade trees have been severely damaged by the drought, says Mercer County agricultural agent Richard Lippincott, and won't survive the summer. . . Cactus, anyone?

EX-MILER William R. Bonhran has been elected chairman of the Township and Borough Recreation Board. And Ralph D. Hull is the new vice-chairman. The board has narrowed down to five the applications for recreation director, the minuscule guy who will run Community Park. It's . . . it's . . . it's SUPERMAN.

THE HOSPITAL'S suggestion boxes are usually filled with earthquake ideas such as: "Roast beef is lousy. Why not ham hocks just once?"

Last week, however, Princeton Hospital found a new complaint in one of the boxes, just maybe placed there by the daughter of a staff member. It read: "I suggest that Mrs. Pseudonym be given a raise so that she can give her daughter more money to spend on the Beatles. (signed) A Junior Volunteer." Only the name has been changed to protect the innocent.

BCA LABS at the David Saroff Research Center here have announced a new program of temporary post-doctoral appointments. . . They will offer one year staff appointments, renewable for a second year, in areas of research for either professors on leave or promising new Ph.D. graduates. . . No more than five appointees will be tapped for honor in any one year.

POLITICS is one subject perhaps better not discussed — and perhaps more so this year than any other. . . But that evidently doesn't hold true for those still too young to vote.

Over the weekend, a grandmother (you know, the still young and always conservatively liberal kind) came on her three-year-old granddaughter spanning the cover of Sunday supplement which showed a larger-than-life picture of the Cow Palace nominee. Said child, while whacking "Barry bad Barry bad."

Is Lesley Bush, 16-year old Princeton High School senior, the first resident of Princeton ever to represent the United States in the Olympics? Could be. . . in any case, the story of her failure followed by success ARE YOU NEW TO PRINCETON? You'll find "Almanac for Newcomers" a delightfully interesting and informative reading. Manager Named Miss Nancy Shannon has been named general manager of McCarte Theatre, succeeding Monte L. Prior-son who had, in turn, succeeded Mrs. Herbert Mc-Aneny.
 A native of Princeton,
 Miss Shannon was Mrs. Mc-Aneny's assistant during the 1954-55 season and was business manager for the 1961-62 season.
 For the past two years,
 she was assistant to Isadore Benet, director of the Performing Arts Program of the Asia Society. In that post, she arranged for a nation-wide tour of leading artists from Far Eastern countries.

"THE TROJAN WOMEN" COMING, Joyce Ebert and Robert Mandan are members of the New York Circle-in-the-Square production of Euripides' tragedy, which will play McCarte Theatre on Monday night, September 14. The current production is the longest-running Greek tragedy in New York theatre history.

and $4.50 last year. Subscribers in the mid-50's. The date is to all four plays will also save. Friday, September 25 (the time, and the new subscription 7 p.m. for "National Velvet" prices being the per performance cost of some seats to about $1.50.

"McCarte is voluntarily reducing its prices in order to make its program of classic drama more readily available to an even wider audience than before," said Miss Nancy Shannon, new general manager for McCarte. "We hope more and more people will feel they cannot afford NOT to subscribe to McCarte."

Miss Shannon also said that overall attendance and number of series subscribers last year were almost 100% higher than in the 1960-61 season, McCarte's first.

The fall drama series will consist of four plays: "Death of a Salesman," "The Great God Brown," "Three Men on a Horse" and "A Streetcar Named Desire."

HEY, IT'S MRS. BURTON!
 Lie. In retrospect, "A Hasty Retrospective Double Feature" is the way McCarte refers to one of the programs in its September Film Festival series.
 Both features star Elizabeth Taylor at widely separate points in her career: "National Velvet," made in 1944, and
 "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," made

MORE ROOM TO DANCE
 Estey's Expand. Executing an adroit pas de deux, Audrey and Wendell Estey have taken over 2400 additional square feet of dancing space at their Princeton Ballet Society studio on Alexander Street.

The square feet formerly belonged to Rosedale Lookers, which has moved to a small building on the same property.
 William Dorman, owner of Rosedale, has leased his former locker space to the Esteys.

In addition to providing the Ballet Society with more teaching and dancing space, the new quarters will serve as rehearsal and storage rooms for the Princeton Regional Ballet.
 Here the Estey's plan to store the costumes and properties that will accumulate as the SLEEPY TIME DOWN SOUTH: Richard Burton takes a siesta south of the border in Mexico while Ava Gardner studies his physiognomy. From "The Night of the Iguana," now at the Prince and Playhouse.

News Of The Theatres

here they will rehearse the young dancers of the company.

"We will have more room now to teach teen-agers, housewives and career women who want to learn to dance, but have no interest in a professional career," Mrs. Esley said in announcing the new acquisition. "I think everyone should dance."

The Princeton Ballet Society began at the old "Rose Cottage" on Borough Hall property and remained there for three years before moving to the Witherspoon "Y," now the Engineering Building, and then the basement of McCarter Theatre. The Esleys moved into their original Rosedale quarters three years ago.

PRINCE AND PLAYHOUSE

The Night of the Iguana (now through Tuesday) has a few rough edges, but is generally very well done and is certainly one of the better pictures to come to the Princeton theaters in recent months.

Originally a play by Tennessee Williams, who also wrote the screenplay, the film stars Richard Burton as a defrocked minister, who makes his living as a tour guide in Mexico. Ava Gardner, Deborah Kerr and Sue Lyon are the women he becomes entangled with during the picture.

Mr. Williams intended the piece to be a study in depth of the principal characters, and because of this the story leans heavily on dialogue. The picture's few faults lie in the characters as they were conceived by Mr. Williams, but they are more than overshadowed by the excellent performance given by Mr. Burton, Miss Gardner and Miss Kerr, under the capable direction of John Huston.

THE GARDEN

The Organizer (now through Tuesday) is an extremely well-made Italian picture starring Marcello Mastroianni in one of his few dramatic roles. Foreign film enthusiasts should find it particularly appealing.

The film tells the story of a fight by laborers in a huge spinning mill in Turin to get better working conditions. Mr. Mastroianni plays the part of an itinerant professor who leads the workers in a strike against mill management.

The film derives its power not from the subject, which is rather commonplace, but from the excellent performances by Mr. Mastroianni, Annie Girardot, Renato Salvatori and others in the cast. Director Mario Monicelli has done a splendid job of interspersing bits of comedy into the drama in the most unlikely places.

Facts You Should Know About Oriental Rugs

Three basic forms of design dominate in Oriental rugs. They are the medallion center well covered field; the medallion center-open field and the all over designed rug. Interspersed between these forms we have a medallion center—semi-open field and plain ground with border. Within these basic forms a number of well known designs may be employed such as the 'Herati' design which is also called the 'Ferragham' design. This particular design has also received recognition in America as the 'fish pattern' because of the repeat angled motifs which resemble small fishes around a diamond.

IT'S NEW To Us

UNDERGRAD UNDERWEAR
That Dunsagee Girdle! Of course. And why not? The sassiest undergarment in town is certainly Edith's navy blue dunsagee girdle with its double rows of red, seersucker-like stripes just like blue jeans. And what do you wear with it? The red bandanna bra, of course. Silly question.

In fact, matching silks, girdles, bras, pants, haltslips, petti-pants — what else is there — crowd into Edith's Chamber Street shop like freshmen in to registration. "Crowd" is the wrong word; have you seen Edith's remodelled quarters with the additional spacious dressing rooms?

Pack 'em all away for campus shipment, starting with the $6 pajama with bright red pants and navy plaid top piped in red. For the coldest nights ever, wrap up in the Bunny Sleeper made out of baby-blanket stuff, with knit cuffs and ankles and even matching boots. It's like the wonderful one-pieces you used to wear when you were warm as a mother's hug and cuddly as a bunny. Aqua, pink or yellow.

Striped flannel, blue or pink closes at wrists and ankles with elastic ruffles, and at the neck with a drawing. The back has a drop seal. ($6)

Red flannel (but softer) makes a whole family of night-shirts, long and short, one style embroidered with white snowflakes, another combined with undershorts. In white, there's delicious blue embroidery making the most feminine long nightgown ever — little round collar, long, prim sleeves.

Brushed nylon has a spray of painted tulips on each side of the front closing, against pink, blue or white. And speaking of femininity, look at Edith's quilted nylon robe in palest pink, with two-inch lace at cuffs and collar, tied off with a pink neck bow. $17.98.

(But we like that red brushed nylon for $17.98, the one with white pile bordering sleeves and round, open neck. Looks just like Santa!)

Undergraduates will like Edith's machine-washable robe in soft mustard gold with gleaming, arrow brand twinning all the way down the front. A flat mustard-gold bow repeats under the chin. ($10.98).

For $6, here's a short fitted gown of fullness at the back, lace insertion at the fitted waist. And a completely full gown, (dovetailing at the shoulders, with pink spray at the hem) to complement the one at shoulder level. A brief sleeve caps the shoulder.

By the way, Edith asks us to remind mothers of girls going away to boarding school, that she specializes in fitting bras to young, developing figures.

THOSE MAGIC ISLES

The Caribbean! If you had to forego a summer vacation, why not spend part of the fall on a quiet island in the Caribbean? Off-season rates will be in effect until December 14 and by "off-season rates," we mean that on December 15, your hotel bill will probably double — exactly. Our informant is Traveler, which ought to know.)

Well, Traveler is stacked to the topmost rigging with information about the most delightful, tucked-away little Caribbean islands and it was all we could do to keep from jetting to St. Kitts, right from Palmer Square.

Yes, Palmer Square. Traveler has moved into the new 70 Nassau Street building, on the ground at the rear, facing north and the post-office.

Dominica, called "the most ruggedly beautiful of all the West Indian islands," sounds like a possibility. You get a chance to meet real Carib Indians, still living primitively in the interior, and there are actually areas of the island that are still unexplored.

For more sophisticated pleasures, there's Barbuda pronounced Bar-byoo-dah. Traveler thinks all travelers should pronounce correctly. Makes a good impression on the natives! Anyhow, this is the island where Princess Margaret honeymooned, and the one hotel is so exclusive that off-season is probably the Hold That Tiger!

Edith of the lingerie shop has acquired (shuddering slightly) the ultimate in back-to-school apparel:

Designed for Vassar or Smith, it is a tiger bikini. Precisely. Nylon tricot, opaque, in black and orange tiger stripes, the top almost nothing in brevity, the bottom just big enough to — well,

"I have re-ordered already," Edith says, without further comment.

She also has a pair of light blue cotton mon-tailored pajamas. For the girl who silently wishes with all her yearning heart that she could wear that bikini.

only time you can get a reservation. Tarpon, bonefish, guinea fowl, blue-winged teal and dove are all on the sportsman's list.

Anguilla pronounced like "vanilla," but "vanilla" is pronounced so many different ways, is according to Traveler, an island just waiting to be discovered. It's close only 90 miles west of St. Thomas — and surrounded by waters teeming with big-game fish. Guest house facilities here, not hotels, and only ports — no towns.

I'M 5 SHORT
You Bulky? Size is big at Landau's. And small. What we mean is, the range of sizes is enormous, and you can buy a full skirt in anything from 5 Short to 20 Tall. On the dress rack, the spread is from size 3 Petite to 24½.

Mostly A-lines on the skirt rack, but skirts, pleats and wraps too. That walker in soft herringbone with two V-pleats in front, and a $10.98 tag is a good one to start. Navy, black or brown.

Warm as an autumn afternoon: that's a check in gold, teal green and brown; blues and red or blues and grey, fully lined, $10.98, with the most delightful matching cardigans in self-heathered gold or green. The yarn is orlon, the closings are antiqued hunting horn buttons. V-neck styles, too.

Turtlenecks, big as snappers, are wool-mohair in avocado, cream, powder, or grey; all heathery and nicely mohair. Landau also has red, white or black smoothly orlon turtles, $5.98; and cotton knits in white, powder, sand, wine or royal, with a small turnover collar — hardly a turtle at all.

Mohair cardigans, with a hint of wool, are fashioned without ribbing or bands for a look of complete "line." Dusty rose, violet, off-white, the loveliest clear yellow, royal, red and powder. All $12.98. Bulkiest, with classic cables, are a surprising $12.98 in dusty blue, white or black.

Mount Lucas Road was the scene of a one-car accident last Tuesday evening in which Mrs. Patricia L. Casserly, 34, 54 Cuyler Road, lost control of her car near Herrington Road and hit a pole. She was uninjured.

Police said they found the car 1100 feet from the point of impact. Her car, its entire right side damaged, was towed away.

RECEIVES CONCUSSION
In Fall from Car, David Blaxill, two-and-one-half-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Blaxill, 41 Galbreath Drive W., was injured Tuesday shortly after noon when he opened the rear door of a car and fell to the pavement near the intersection of Nassau and Moore Streets.

He was taken to Princeton Hospital and admitted for treatment of a cerebral concussion. The Hospital described his condition as satisfactory.

A Kingston youth, Douglas Gough, 19 42 Main Street, was injured Monday night at 8:15 when the car in which he was a passenger went out of control on the Kingston-Rocky Hill Road a half-mile from the intersection of Route 27.

Gough was admitted to the intensive care unit of Princeton Hospital suffering from a cerebral concussion. His condition is fair. The driver, Gregory Heacock, 17, 75 Laurel Avenue, Kingston, received minor injuries to his left leg. Princeton State Police, who investigated, said the car went onto a ditch and up an embankment. In the process, both boys were thrown clear. Heacock was ticketed for careless driving.

EIDS AND BAPTISTS
School Board Topics, The Borough Board of Education discussed bids and Baptists at Tuesday's session. It touched on student smoking (banned), the Olympics, and for the first time, agreed to help pay for the education of an emotionally-disturbed child.

It hired three part-time teachers, a "clerk-of-the-works" for the new school, and in the September 1966 close of sending-receiving relations with Hopewell Borough and Montgomery Township.

"Boundaries Needed." On the surface, the Child Guidance Center's request was simple. It asked the Board to assist a Princeton child's parents in meeting tuition at the "Children's Day Center," a Child Guidance school established last year. This called for a new policy as well as a search for available funds.

The board currently assists the mentally retarded child who is deemed "educable" at a tuition of $1,473.50 per child. It estimates that the education of an emotionally-disturbed child, drawing upon highly-trained professionals, would cost more.

Superintendent Chester R. Stroup informed the Board that legislation enabling such support had been passed last spring. "The state superintendent believes that the state will reimburse 50% of the cost."

Mrs. Sarah K. Strayer said, "We need some boundaries. Say five children apply. Can we afford it? Who would approve the school?"

John A. Backlund commented, "So far, the onus is on the parents to move. Are we reaching the point where we will recommend marginal children to this class? It seems like a healthy discussion."

Wary of setting immediate policy, the Board agreed to "assist in this instance, within the limits of the budget." To which Dean Elmer G. Hornigrausen added, "Make sure that it is clear that the child is the responsibility of the Borough Schools. Child Guidance Center is an agency, not a school."

Building Bids. Advertisements for bids for the $2.5 million John Witherspoon School may be released this week. The Board is waiting for the state's written approval of plans, due on Thursday.

CONTROL POINT: All traffic entering the Princeton campus is subject to control from one of these percolas as part of the new policy banning cars and trucks from regular use of University roads. What a percola? Webster says it's a building "designed to resemble an arbor." (Staff Photo)

The construction budget is $2,115,000. Bids will be opened on October 6.

A retired Army colonel, James C. Collins, was named "clerk-of-the-works" for construction. He spent most of his career on military construction throughout the world and has been working on school construction since retirement.

The Board is about to take title to the Westminster Choir College lot at Franklin Street and Walnut Lane, which forms part of the new school's grounds. The delay has been due to a mortgage on the tract.

Attorney William Miller told the Board that the extension of Guyot along one side of the are many Southern Baptist families in this area. "We are all brothers and able to meet our obligations." He felt there would be no conflict with the other Baptist churches in Princeton.

This reactivated the church and state issue, with Board President Graham Rohrer reminding members that the Supreme Court ruling "is against the alleged exposure of children to religious education in the schools. It was nothing to do with the walls."

The Baptists' request was still pending more information concerning their needs.

No Smoking. Mr. Rohrer's longtime campaign against smoking in the schools finally drew full approval from the Board. The ban takes effect immediately. Enforcement at the high school will rest upon the Student Council, the principal and faculty.

The consensus was that the relationship between smoking and cancer has been established by the Federal government and that last spring's "Parental permission rule" was an evasion of the problem.

Two objections were put forth, although the Board unanimously adopted the smoking ban. Mr. Buckland argued that, "Prohibition is not a fact of life. We're just driving the students up onto our neighbors' lawns."

Dean Hornighausen expressed concern that enforcement might place in jeopardy the authority of the principal, Kenneth Michael. He also suggested that the ban apply to teachers. "No double standards here!" The motion, as finally passed, applies to students only.

Personnel. The Board granted a leave of absence to Irwin Weiss of the physical education department. He will serve on the administrative staff of the Olympic Committee in Tokyo from October 10 to 24. The Board noted that he has performed similar service at the Pan American Games and at the Olympics in Rome.

Part-time faculty appointments include: Mrs. Sybil Parnes, high school history; Mrs. Marian Susanna, high school math; and Mrs. Dolores Meyer, kindergarten.

THE BIG JOB?

Katzenbach Has Chance. A former Princetonian, Nicholas deB. Katzenbach has taken over the post of acting assistant general of the United States. As first deputy, Mr. Katzenbach automatically assumed the post after Robert F. Kennedy resigned to campaign for the Senate.

Mr. Katzenbach, a graduate of Princeton Country Day School and of the University, may or may not be named permanently to the position—if President Johnson is reelected in November. Working in his favor are at least three factors.

One is his work during the Cuban missile crisis and the naval blockade of Cuba. Second is his work in implementing the civil rights bill, the drafting of which he had supervised previously.

Then, when Lee Harvey Oswald killed President Kennedy, Mr. Katzenbach took over direction of the Justice Department and headed the investigation.

Magistrate Resigns

James S. Hill, Township magistrate, has asked Township Committee to find a successor for him on the bench.

To a letter of resignation dated September 2, Magistrate Hill said that he would remain on the job until someone else could be found, adding that he hoped a successor could be named by September 30.

The pressures of his own professional life as Magistrate Hill is a lawyer with Johnson & Johnson—was thought to be the reason behind his resignation. He was appointed to the Township bench in January, 1960, and re-appointed in January, 1963.

tion of the murder. He also is known as a brilliant lawyer ("The smartest man in the Administration," is one respected Congressman's evaluation of him).

But, perhaps offsetting these accomplishments, Mr. Katzenbach's reputation in Washington is not that of being a "political person." And the custom is for political presidents to name politicians as attorneys general.

Mr. Katzenbach is a member of a family with a notable record of public service. His father, the late Edward L. Katzenbach, was attorney general of New Jersey from 1924 to 1929; and his mother, who lives at 2 Stanworth Lane here, is president of the New Jersey Board of Education.

Mr. Katzenbach, who received his law degree from Yale, was also a Rhodes Scholar. He was a professor of law at Chicago University before he joined the Kennedy administration. During World War II he was captured by the Italians when his plane was shot down over the Mediterranean. Throughout his captivity he spent so much time reading that he qualified for his Princeton degree cum laude only a few months after his release.

REGISTER TO VOTE!

"FAHR" Plans Rally. A voter registration rally sponsored by FAHR will be held next Monday at 8:30 p.m. at the Witherspoon School. Speakers will describe their experiences with voter registration in Mississippi, and will comment on the significance of the vote in Princeton in 1964.

Robert Ganges of Trenton, former Mercer County Freeholder candidate on the Republican ticket who recently withdrew his candidacy; Michael Lipsky, graduate student at Princeton who worked on the Freedom Summer project in Mississippi; and Sheila Hatcher, Princeton High School senior who spent the summer in the Atlanta office of SNCC, will speak.

The rally is part of FAHR's campaign to increase the number of registered voters in Princeton—the number of Princeton residents who vote on election day. FAHR volunteers have been canvassing in several Borough and Township districts for the past three weeks.

Adult School Has Course
Classes in Chinese cooking and electronic computers are included in Princeton Adult School's potpourri curriculum this fall. (A full description of all courses is to be found on pages 24 and 25 of this issue.)
Mrs. Yung-Chi Chen, on the staff of the oriental department at Firestone Library, will give individual instruction for such exotic dishes as cucumber and meat soup, Lion's Head, mandarin eggs and spring rolls. The final class will be a banquet to which each student may bring a guest.

Professor Edward J. McCluskey Jr., of Princeton University's engineering department, will lead the course on computers, open to all who have passed high school algebra. He will delve into the mystique of the role of the computer in elections, and cover such topics as binary numbers, computer arithmetic, Boolean algebra, and non-numerical applications such as problem solving.

In the arts, a creative writer's seminar is planned under the leadership of Mrs. Charles Healey, author of 18 books, and an off-Broadway play, and a beginners class in watercolor will be given by Mrs. Thurmer H. Tribble, a member of the American Watercolor Society.

Mrs. Healey, daughter of former Ambassador to England John W. Davis, will emcee the writing class with an eye towards specific publication markets. Original pieces are to be submitted at the first session, for group discussion and private criticism.

BEAUTY ON THE SQUARE

by: ARCHIMEDES

There are perhaps ten thousand "dos" and "don'ts" relating to skin care, but we'll touch on one subject only — extremes. Due to the skin's sensitivity to temperature changes, be chary of water that is too hot or too cold for washing or rinsing. Use lukewarm water and keep creams and lotions at room temperature.

Use tightening masks in moderation and the same goes for the biter type exfoliates that tingle pleasantly but can, on occasion, encourage blood flow to the point where minute capillaries break.

Whatever your desire — a tint, a permanent, or an exciting new hair style — we have skilled operators to serve you at TAVERNWOOD BEAUTY MANOR & COSMETIC SHOP, 69 Palmer Square West. Open 6 days a week, plus Thurs. and Fri. evenings. Specialists in permanents and body waves. Phone 924-5985. "Recommended by Particular Women."

Person To Person

Talking of safety not only on the highways but on the job and in the home we were surprised by the statistics. In recent years car accidents caused close to 3,000 deaths and more than 38,000 deaths. And there was an on-the-job fatal accident every 38 minutes of every day. Even worse, someone was killed every 19 minutes in a home accident. If we knew how many nonfatal accidents happened in the home and on the job, the grand total would probably be an accident some where every few seconds. With these odds working against us who needs to be told we should be on the alert against accidents every minute everywhere? Speaking of attention-getting safety signs, there is one near an ancient graveyard in St. Albans, England, which reads: "Many Romans are buried here. Please don't follow their example." And, another example of dry English humor appeared in a bit of advice which said, "Always try to drive so that your license will expire before you die." Also good advice is to check our quality, service and savings right now! Kammler Buick-Pontiac, 206, c/o, Princeton Airport, 921-2222.

Thanks from the Jaycees.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
 The Princeton Jaycees wish to express their sincere appreciation to members of the Princeton Community for their support of the third annual Jaycee Football Classic held August 29 at Palmer Stadium. The local chapter expects to contribute more than $9,500 to the Princeton Hospital Building Fund as its share of the charity dollars raised by the event.

In particular, the cooperation and support we received from all local media was outstanding and undoubtedly was a major factor in our selling the large number of tickets needed to meet our charitable contribution. We also wish to thank Mr. George W. Conover, president of the Hospital Board of Directors, for his sincere interest and splendid help in promoting this year's Classic and the Princeton University Store and Princeton Stationers who made their facilities available for the sale of tickets.

Once again, the Jaycees tip their hats to the Princeton Community and local media.

(The following article is only a series prepared by the New Jersey Treasurers Commission to recall events during the State's past and to help publicize its 600th anniversary in 1964. Written by John T. Cunningham, it is entitled, "When Trenton Was the Federal Capital.")

SEARCH FOR A CAPITAL

Madison Favored Trenton. James Madison of Virginia advised friends in a letter written October 13, 1783, that Trenton "is to become the future seat of the Federal Government." Nothing, he said, save "a conversion of some of the Eastern States," could save the dignity of the South.

Virginia delegates to the Continental Congress, then temporarily convened in Princeton, vigorously protested the choice of Trenton. Why, they were not without a sacrifice of good southern interests to sordid "New England commercialism," they argued.

Every northern state (or eastern state, as Madison called them) from New Hampshire to Delaware lined up for Trenton. The backers had considerable hope on their side. Trenton in 1783 was nearly the geographic mid-point of the 13 disunited states. Nevertheless, southern power prompted Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts to rise on October 20 to win approval for alternating sessions of Congress between Annapolis and Trenton, a unit permanent buildings could be built somewhere. New Jerseymen fumed, and poet Francis Hopkinson of Bordentown likened such government to "a pendulum. Congress went to Annapolis any day."

Arrival Awaited. Trentonians settled down to await the day when the pendulum must swing northward. The honor of having Congress in town brought a patriotic glow, and good estimates indicated that Congress would be worth at least $10,000 a month in extra trade.

Trenton in those days numbered not more than 100 buildings arrayed along seven or eight dirt streets. Second (now State) Street dwindled down into a lane through an orchard to the west. King (now Warren) Street intersected Second and ran to Front Street, the direct route to the Old Barracks where Hessians had lived during December of 1776.

Anticipation swept through the village in 1784, when stages from Annapolis brought news that Congress would arrive in town on or about November 1. Tavern owners, boarding house proprietors and shopkeepers mentally calculated the unquestioned delights of having Congressmen in town.

Legislators approved leading the old Stacy Potts home for use of the President and advanced money for improving the French Arms Tavern on the southwest corner of Second and King (State and Warren) Streets for use of Congress.

Preparations Made. New Jersey went all out to make the French Arms a reasonable facsimile of a national capital. The tavern's "long room" was repapered, recarpeted and repainted and a platform was erected between the two great fireplaces on the south side of the room. Thirteen new tables, each covered with green cloth, and 48 new window chairs were provided.

Sadly, for a state verbally dedicated to bringing Congress to Trenton, the federal lawmakers encountered brisk local competition when they sought to rest their weary heads. Nearly all desirable rooms were occupied by members of the State Legislature convened in Trenton at the same time so they wouldn't miss a thing.

Congress naturally decided to get its business done with quickly and get out of town, but members remained long enough to take again the business of the national capital. Comfortable beds didn't come

REPORT ON MOON-SHOT: Bernard P. Muller will describe Ranger 7's trip to the moon in address to be given next week. In a historic speech against New Jersey On December 23, members overrode Southern opposition and voted $100,000 for federal buildings to be erected in "a district not less than two nor exceeding three miles square on the banks of either side of the Delaware."

President's House Planned: Congress further authorized a three-man commission to build "in an elegant manner, a federal house for the accommodation of Congress and the executive offices thereof." They could also build a President's house and assorted buildings for governmental departments—all elegant provided everything cost not more than $100,000.

Treotonians counted their capital before the bricks were laid, and property values soared. Already the tide had turned. George Washington might have retained sentimental memories of a Christmas in Trenton, but in February, 1785, he wrote to President Richard Henry Lee of the Continental Congress from Mount Vernon: "By the time your federal buildings on the banks of the Delaware are fit for the reception of Congress, it will be found that they are improperly placed for the seat of the empire."

That lofty opposition just about ended Trenton hopes. Congress in September, 1785, refused to appropriate the $100,000 approved the previous December in Trenton. Southern opponents had so influenced Congress that only New Jersey and Massachusetts voted in favor. Four years later, Elias Boudinot of Elizabeth vainly tried again, but only four votes backed his bid for a capital on the "banks of the Delaware."

The pendulum had stopped beside the Potomac River, never to swing northward again.

INSIDE INFORMATION

Muller, key figure in the historic Ranger 7 space-craft project, will address the Princeton section of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics next Thursday, September 17. START OF WORLD WAR II RECALLED: Twenty-five years ago, on September 1, 1939, Hitler invaded Poland and embroiled the world in war. That his legacy has not left us completely is evidenced by the headline in the newspaper held by William Wasserman, Mr. Wasserman can recall exactly what he was doing when the news of Hitler's invasion broke. (Staff Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: September 1 is the 25th anniversary of Germany's invasion of Poland and the start of World War II. Where were you at the time and how did it affect you?

Where asked: Nassau Street

William Wasserman, St. Paul's School, janitor: I was over at St. Joseph's College on Kingston Road, cutting the grass on the old baseball field when a neighbor called over to me that Hitler was on the radio and that he was raving like a madman. He was going to conquer the world... what he wasn't going to do! I remember that it was hot and that we didn't have anything to be afraid of because of our manpower. But he sure gave us something to think about. I didn't have to go because I was too old.

John P. Cleaver, Rosedale Lane, president of J. P. Cleaver, 3 Palmer Square: At the time, I was coming from Norway to start my junior year at Princeton University. We felt this verified our fears that Hitler was out to conquer the world. That was the shock of the whole thing. We all wondered whether we would be drafted, whether we would be able to finish college, and how soon the U.S. would get involved in it, which seemed inevitable. I managed to finish school and graduated 1941. I went into the aircraft business as an engineer for the Glenn L. Martin Company and ended up building B-26 and B-29s. Everytime it came time for me to be drafted they kept deferring me, so I was fortunate in that respect.

Daniel Briggs, Hamilton Square, electrician: I was working on a housing project off Harrison Street and the superintendent had the radio on. We stopped and heard that Germany had invaded Poland. Everybody expected it — at least I did. The war didn't affect me personally, but I had two brothers in it.

Lester Throckmorton, Allentown, campus policeman, Princeton University: I thought, "Well, here we go again." I knew we'd be in it. Everyone was watching the chain of events and it seemed inevitable the war would come. Germany kept pushing, pushing and we kept backing up, trying to accommodate them. I was I-A for a while but they changed my status before they got me into it.

Earl Bravers, Flemington, carpenter for Tower Construction Co.: I was driving nails at the time, just like I am now. I remember listening to a lot of overseas radio reports. I was anything but calm. I'll tell you that, because I was drafted. Anybody who tells you different is a liar. Everyone was a bundle of nerves. I didn't like the idea of being 24 years old and getting a bullet in my head for no reason. I was drafted and served in the Asian theater of the war.

Vincent L. Ross, 12 Petham Street, sheetmetal worker: I was working in Princeton at the time for Tilton Brothers, who are no longer in business. I didn't feel good about it, when I heard it. I was too young for the first war and too old for the second, but I was sorry to see it happen because I knew it would lead to worse things later on.

Tasley Townsend, 116 Witherspoon St., employee of Matthews Construction: I was living in Philly working in a paint shop at Third and Lehigh. I felt bad at the time because so many fellows had to leave their families — a lot had never left home before. Work picked up more after the war started. We sold more paint... the whole city picked up. A lot of men were out of work at the time. Actually, the war meant a job for me. I picked up a trade and it gave me the opportunity to get started. When we got involved I was rejected, but I had a brother overseas.

Stanley Clinman, Somerville, plaster foreman, Matthews: I was in Manville at the time and I remember that our neighbor was crying. My wife went over and asked what happened and she told her that Hitler had invaded Poland and that she had a lot of relatives over there. I never got into the service myself.

Walter Puth, Los Angeles, insurance divisional manager: I remember my thoughts very clearly. I was listening to the pro football game in Union and I thought, "Well, here we go off to war." I pictured myself leaving with my family staying behind. But I didn't have to go. We had a good draft board chairman who refused to take those who had families.

Edmund Falciglia, Jamesburg, painter: I was working at the World's Fair as a painter for the Pelham Painting Company — same company I'm working for now. I thought there was going to be a war, which there was — but I didn't think at the time that it was going to last as long as it did. I worked in the Brooklyn Navy Yard the entire war. I kept getting deferred on the basis of an essential job.

George Van Marter, Lawrenceville, steamfitter: I was in Princeton in 1939 and I can tell you I did not think I was a damn shame for all freedom-loving people. I thought we would have gotten in it sooner than we did. I'll go back even further: if they had listened to Wilson there wouldn't have been a war. I volunteered and spent two years overseas with Patton's army.

Alonso Davis, Trenton, driver for Verbeest Cleaners: I was 25 and living in West Chester, Ohio, and I was shocked at what Hitler had done. I didn't think we would get in it. I did not, but I spent a lot of time in France, England, Germany and Belgium before it was over.

FUND CAMPAIGN READY

"Kickoff" Meetings Launched

This year's United Fund-Red Cross campaign chairman, Bernard M. Barenholtz, has announced dates for the opening meetings for three of the campaign's major divisions. The three special gifts division, the professions division and the mercantile division.

This Wednesday at 8 p.m. the special gifts division is scheduled to meet at the YM-YWCA for instructions and the distribution of materials for solicitation. Under the co-chairmanship of Mrs. William H. Walker and Mrs. J. Taylor Woodward, this group is reported "at full strength" to begin its assault on its quota of $129,000 toward the total goal of $385,265.

On Friday, members of the professions division, under the leadership of Fred R. Peterson and Leslie L. Vivan, will meet at the Nassau Inn at 8:30 a.m.

to begin their work to raise a quota of $18,000. And on Monday, also at 8:30 a.m. in the Nassau Inn, the mercantile division members will hold their indoctrination meeting with Allen and his associates here, to two of the old churches, Ralph Nader, chairman, and William Hohn, William Dett-

Campaign Chairman Barenholtz points out "This year's goal of $385,265 can be raised if every resident, employee and businessman can give a fair share gift. Giving to the United Fund-Red Cross campaign is an investment in our youth, good health, services, family counseling and emergency aid — and in helping to keep the community's fine place in which to live and work."

One valuable partner in the Princeton area campaign is the Montgomery Township Community Chest. Last year, residents and businesses in Montgomery backed the campaign to make sure that their $5,000 quota would be raised.

Chairman for the Montgomery Township Community Chest is Dr. Frank H. Johnson. He is assisted by Mrs. Shirley Claman, secretary; Robert Hoedemaker, treasurer; and William Dornbus and Harry Dowling, members of the board.

According to United Fund campaign officials: "The Montgomery Township Community Chest realizes its full partnership with the Princeton Area United Fund. The township carries its weight in fund-raising so that it will not be outdistanced by other communities in the Fund area."

"The cooperative endeavors of the leaders in Montgomery Township and the Princeton Area United Fund show that municipal lines are no barriers in providing services for human welfare."

MICROSCOPY IMPROVED
By Princeton Scientists. A new microscope system which is able to "weigh" living cells with a precision and speed ten to 100 times greater than previously possible has been announced by Dr. Robert D. Allen, associate professor of biology at the University. Dr. Allen, in describing the system, said that it had been used to detect high-wave phase shifts as small as two hundred-billionths of an inch.

The new microscope system's development, first described by Dr. Allen on Friday at the Congress of the International Society for Cell Biology, meeting at Brown University, was made possible by a research contract with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Despite the original source of support, however, present applications are expected to be chiefly in terrestrial and marine biology and in medical research. The instrument also gives promise of being useful for microscopic studies in space because its electrical measurements can be transmitted by radio.

Dr. Allen, who is widely known for his investigations of the movement of cells and lower organisms, has been a member of the Princeton faculty since 1956. His biological research and early studies in microscopy optics were supported by the National Institutes of Health.

VOTING LAWS OUTDATED
Rules Need Changing. Model "T" voting regulations in a jet-propelled era will deprive millions of Americans of their right to vote in November's presidential election. This is the conclusion of Donald G. Herzberg, 171 Shady Brook Lane executive director of the Eagleton Institute of Politics at Rutgers.

Mr. Herzberg recently completed service as staff director of the President's Commission on Registration and Voting Participation. The study group was appointed by President Kennedy in March 1963, and made its report to President Johnson last December.

"While outmoded election laws have in many instances been worked over and improved, in general they do not reflect the needs of a modern, mobile, highly urbanized America," Mr. Herzberg states. He has estimated that 24 million voters who wanted to vote in the 1960 presidential election were denied the privilege by one or another kind of voting roadblock.

Mr. Herzberg points out, for example, that in many states, a citizen who moves shortly before elections (even from one street to another in the same community) may lose his chance to vote. His estimate is that 10 million voters will be disqualified this year simply on the basis of residence requirement.

While he acknowledges the need for some kind of residence requirement to combat fraud and to allow new residents to become familiar with local issues and candidates, he feels that the year or more of the residence required by 38 states is excessive. Instead, Herzberg considers it to be antiquated and unnecessary is the closing of registered voters lists months before election.

In some states, the registration deadline is as much as nine months before election day, and even in New Jersey the period is 40 days. It is Mr. Herzberg's belief that three or four weeks is long enough, and that present lengthy deadlines are merely a hangover from days when voting lists were laboriously drawn up by clerks with quill pens.

Mr. Herzberg also points to another limitation on voting imposed by the difficulty of registering. By contrast, he cites the many European nations where the registrar is responsible for going to the voter and registering him — which generally results in getting a much higher turnout than we do.

In many states, he says, "the rules are set up for the convenience of the registrar rather than for the convenience of the voter." Another registration procedure here which Mr. Herzberg considers to be antiquated and unnecessary is the closing of registered voters lists months before election.

NEGRO ENROLLMENT UP
At Princeton University. There will be at least 15 American Negroes in Princeton University's incoming freshman class of 800. There were from one to five Negroes enrolled in the five preceding years. According to President Robert F. Goheen, the University has been "intensifying and broadening the search for qualified Negro candidates." About 70 applied for admission as freshmen this year, as a result of stepped-up efforts by the University.

In the annual report mailed last fall to 4,000 secondary schools, a section entitled "Search for Negro Applicants" stated, "Efforts of school people in steering toward Princeton qualified Negroes will be appreciated." This was the first time the University had included such a request in its report.

E. Alden Dunham, admissions director, gives three reasons for the University's difficulty in attracting qualified Negroes:

1) The small number of Negroes who can meet Princeton's academic standards.
2) The unwillingness of many eligible Negroes to live in the small town atmosphere of Princeton "where there is no place that they can lose themselves in a big city."

3) Princeton has had the reputation of being anti-liberal, dating back to Civil War days "when half of the school fought for the North and the other half for the South."

This year's contingent of Negroes in the freshman class is the largest in the University's history.

FULL DAY PLANNED
For Chapin First Graders. When the Chapin School opens next Monday for its 33rd year, full-day classes will be held for the first time for grade 1.

Plans are being made to extend a bus route to pick up children in the Lawrenceville, Pennington, Ewing, Trenton and Lower Bucks County areas.

Mrs. Olga T. Smith, headmistress, has announced the following new staff members: Mrs. Donald Roberts, formerly of Grasse Point University School, who will teach fourth grade; Mrs. Everett Gendler, previously at the Suresnes School, France, as French teacher; Donald Kratz from Princeton University, athletics, and Mrs. Hakke Chon, a graduate of Seoul National University, Korea, secretary.

GOING BACK in Town Topics

FIVE YEARS AGO
 September 3, 1964. Princeton's ever-booming research activities seemed set for another explosion five years ago with the rumor that "a new electronics center with some 2,000 employees is expected to occupy a 200-acre site on Princeton Pike in Lawrence Township.

The anticipated explosion, however, turned out to be a dud. The firm (described by one source as "even bigger than RCA's David Sarnoff Research Center here") settled elsewhere, and the 200-acre site remained at least temporarily its original character as a rabbit recreation center.

A $100,000 fire had totally destroyed the barn and outbuildings at "Woodacres," the Albert W. Hobler farm on Cedar Grove Farm, despite five hours of labor by more than 100 firemen to bring the blaze under control. Fortunately, Mr. Albert's herd of prize Guernsey cattle were out to pasture, so there were no losses of livestock. Nor were there any injuries to any of the firefighters or to any of the countless hundreds of spectators.

1959 Back-to-School note: a four-year-old who was living in a rural retreat outside Princeton had asked her mother to send her to the school "where they raise little horses." Her quick-thinking parent realized the youngster had the Nassau Street School in mind (because it's the "burro" school).

TEN YEARS AGO
 September 2, 1954. As in 1964 so in 1954 Princeton's public school system was much in the news, particularly the high school. For the high school, like many of the 1,000-plus students which jammed its every available inch of space, kept outwitting its braches.

To quote B. Woodhall Davis, borough school superintendent, ten years ago: "Every classroom, laboratory, store room and office . . . has been scheduled for every period of an eight-period day. However, this is only part of the difficulty. The terrific congestion in inadequate study halls, the cafeteria, gymnasium and other special facilities will be intolerable."

By 1964 the high school (despite considerable expansion) was once again starting to split at the seams. And no wonder. From the 1,402 enrollment in '54, it is scheduled to open this fall with an estimated 1,700, another all-time high.

Borough elementary school population, meanwhile, has stayed about the same over the decade. In 1954, the pupil census was 990; for '64, it's 960.

An athlete well known to University authorities was back in the news in September 1954. No Princeton graduate, George T. Glisson, former professional sports figure, had just set some kind of record by escaping for the second time via the same exit and with the same "borrowed" key from Norristown State Hospital in Pennsylvania.

Reason for Glisson's confinement to the mental box: he reportedly had stolen over $2,100 from the Princeton campus over a preceding three-year period and a total of some $23,000 elsewhere (not counting the all-important key which twice had sprung him loose).

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO
 September 1, 1949. Innovations in the town included "Operation Nassau," a plan to unify and harmonize color and design of Princeton storefronts. Operators of the operation 15 years ago were Dilman M. K. Smith, Julian Garney and John Archer, who were ready and able to offer their services free and with no obligation asked that their advice be adhered to.

For the first time in Princeton's long history of football, the 1949 team was preparing to spend a fortnight of preseason practice in Blairtown (where it has gone ever since). The results were impressive: the team won the Big Three title and then closed out the season with an upset victory over Dartmouth.

The out-of-town tryout at Blairtown helped. But the trio of Coach Charles W. Caldwell, Captain George Sella and an 18-year-old youth named Kumaier, aided and abetted by a host of other capable players, and coaches had much to do with Princeton's sudden emergence as a nationally ranked eleven.

Sound suggestion: a 1949 ad in TOWN magazine requested "IF YOUR NEIGHBORS don't appreciate a real musical talent, come and sing or play in our soundproof practice rooms at 18 Nassau Street.

STAFF CHANGES MADE

At Opinion Research. Two promotions and a staff addition have been announced by Opinion Research Corporation. Mrs. Alice Costello has been promoted to associate research director and Mr. Billie C. Moore to assistant survey director. Thomas Katsko Jr., a Princeton University graduate, has joined the firm as field representative responsible for hiring and training ORC interviewers throughout the country.

COLD WAR IS TOPIC

Of Scientists' Session. The Society for Social Responsibility in Science will hold its annual meeting September 11 to 13 in McCosh Hall, Princeton University campus.

Dr. Seymour Melman, professor of industrial and management engineering at Columbia, will give the key address, "Conversion of the U.S. Cold War Institutional Machine," at the dinner-meeting September 12 at the Nassau Inn. A memorial to the late Albert Einstein will be held at 2 p.m. on the 13th.

An international unit, the Society is an organization of scientific workers based on the principle that science and technology should contribute to the benefit of mankind, not to its harm or destruction.

The public is invited to attend the sessions. Admission is free. Further information may be obtained from W. Graham, 973 Woodmere Drive, Westfield, N. J.

COORDINATOR NAMED

ETS Appoints Brickell. Educational Testing Service has announced the appointment of Dr. Henry M. Brickell as its Coordinator of Services to Curriculum Study Groups. Presently, Dr. Brickell is Assistant Superintendent in charge of instructional services of the Manhasset public schools in New York.

Dr. Brickell, who has been associated with the Manhasset public schools since 1954, previously served as an English teacher in public and private schools in the Chicago area. While at Manhasset he wrote several books on educational procedures and operations. He is a graduate of Ohio State University, receiving the advanced degrees from the University of Chicago and Columbia University.

CARRON COPIES NEEDED:
Princeton football coaches are conquering a manhunt for quarterback candidates who can provide depth behind Roy Pizarello, the only player with varying experience.

SPORTS In Princeton

TIGERS TOO THIN

At Quarterback Slot, The chances that Dartmouth, Harvard and Yale have of winning the Ivy championship this fall are being weighed in the balance until it is known how good a quarterback each can develop. Quarterly crisis at Hanover, Cambridge and New Haven but for the time being, quality is lacking.

Princeton, on the other hand, has quality in the person of senior Roy Pizarello but one of the big problems of the 1964 training camp is finding adequate reserve strength for the field general's berth. During the first week at Blairstown, the task of developing replacements has been receiving constant attention from Coach Dick Colman and his staff.

There's no question about Pizarello's ability to fill the gap left by the graduation of Dick Spryng. He blocks to perfection, runs the team with a justified air of confidence that is easily visible from the side, lines and is well versed in the theory of the intricate single wing offense.

Colman has said in the early days of pre-season practice that Princeton will field a better than average first team this fall but that depth is a major cause for concern at several positions. None is more worrisome than quarterback as Pizarello should sustain an injury serious enough to sideline him for any length of time, the chances Princeton has of defending its share of the Ivy crown successfully would tail-spin.

Who's on Hand? The possible replacements number one letterman who is virtually certain to specialize on defense, as he has for the past two seasons.
Two varsity halfbacks, neither of whom has been seriously considered in the past; and several undrafted sophomores with run-of-the-mill freshman careers behind them.

Senior Don Holt backs 200 pounds on his 6-3 frame and loves to hit, but he has been used almost solely as a linebacker in the past two years.
Accordingly, his blocking lacks polish and he has done very little signal-calling.

Fred Gaudin, a senior who has not seen sufficient action in two years to earn a letter, and Junior Bob Bettel, a fullback switch, are the varsity halfbacks. Of last year's freshman crop, 194-lb. Blair Lee Jr., who saw considerable action for the Class of 1967, has been switched to a line position and Schuyler Henderson, like Don Holt, has been used mostly as a linebacker.

Days Well Filled. Double drills — morning and afternoon — and squad meetings beginning at 8 p.m. are the order of the day at Blairstown, where the players remain until next Friday, September 13. The temperature invariably exceeds 80 degrees, but believe the heat that permeates the September atmosphere in this part of New Jersey, and good progress is being made. Several full-scale scrimmages have been held after the early non-contact sessions were staged to introduce new play routines.

One of the positions receiving steady attention is that of wingback, where all — Ivy Jim Rockenbach must be replaced.
Senior John O'Brien, who can run a left-handed passing threat to the assignment, must be slowed by injuries — as he was last fall — and the starting berth is likely to go to a classmate, Doug Tufts.

Tufts is only a 165-pounder and no more than 5-10, but with ability to substitute immediately for him on defense, his small stature will not be a detriment to a starting assignment. Bill Kleinsasser, who operated at wingback when Dick Krumm was tearing the record book apart, was built along similar lines.

Unfront, one minor position switch has been made. Sophomore John Seifert has been switched from inside to outside tackle in the Tigers' single wing alignment, and will replace Seifert as a replacement for senior Wendell Cady.

Standing 6-5 and weighing 225, Seifert is the biggest lineman with good potential to come up to the varsity in many years. The Tigers have had a few alters of more or less similar proportions, but their he was more than they themselves could handle. He figures to fit largely into the picture.

The squad will break camp on the 18th, returning to Princeton for the annual closed scrimmage with Lehigh the following day. The season opens Saturday, September 26, a game against Rutgers.

A victim of the Tigers for the past two years, reversing the trend that had seen the Scoutlet win three in a row prior to that, the New Brunswick eleven is issuing optimistic reports from its camp. It will come into Palmer Stadium particularly

Seven Tigers Are Husbands

captain Jim McKeever, probably the team's outstanding line man last year, and rugged Nick Long, left holes at tackle.

At guard, it is the same story gone are standouts Greg Seitz and Jeff Lowe. From center, Dave Bonner and Mike Hawk, both lettermen, were lost via the diploma route. Offensively, these veterans helped pave the way to 13 TDs in 1985, defensively, they limited the opposition to seven touchdowns in eight contests, shutting out three schools and limiting three others to a lone touchdown.

It is clear that a major rebuilding job lies ahead for head coach Dick Wood and his line coach Gerry Groninger — a major because there is only a handful of returning lettermen that Wood can use as a nucleus in his rebuilding. Of 13 returning veterans, seven are freshmen. This has since been reduced to six with the announcement that John Godshalk has quit school to enter the armed forces.

Led by Kulley. Returning are Andy Kulley, co-captain; Pete Heiberger, Bruce Tipi, Ed Pomianowski, and the only two junior lettermen—Tony Arcaro and Rick Stewart. The line will be anchored and led by Kulley, a rugged, 6'2, 200 lb. tackle who doubles as a standout in the shot and discus for the PHS track team. Said Wood of his co-captain, "Kulley is real strong; he is going to be a good leader."

Unlike the previous two seasons in which center was a trouble spot, Wood sees the strong side end and the weak side guard as the two positions that will create the most problems this year. "We have an untied situation at both spots," he commented.

Following is a more detailed description of the line positions, as viewed by Wood well before the first practice session.

Ends: As mentioned earlier, the strong side is a weak point. To get the blocking the position demands, Wood reported he is considering switching Heiberger from the weak end slot he played a year ago.

Though slight himself, Pete has added enough poundage between seasons to his 6-3 frame. Wood feels to be able to handle the blocking. Moreover, Pete is a capable receiver.

Wood revealed that he is also considering three juniors — Bart Bennett, Art Buckland and Mark Dannenhauer. Each has had a year's experience but not in this position.

The leading candidate for weak side end at this early stage is Vince Boccanfuso, a junior and track sprinter, who has "good speed and good hands," according to Wood. Although Boccanfuso is well grounded in the mechanics of blocking, he is said Wood, slight for the position. On last year's weight chart, Vince was listed at 125.

This same liability — injury prone and slightness — would apply also to Bruce Tipi. Tipi saw considerable action last year, especially on defense, but at 133 pounds he may have to yield to someone heavier. That someone could be two former backfield players whom Wood is considering trying at the position — Tom Mooney and Anthony Adams. In a word, the situation at both ends is fluid.

Tackles: There is nothing fluid about outside tackle where Kulley is entrenched. Kulley, said Wood, is one of the few boys who will play both offense and defense. "He's that good that I can't afford not to play him," Wood added.

Should Kulley be injured, Wood indicated he would turn either to Pat Murphy, a senior or Joe Hirschberger, a junior, each of whom has had a year's jayvee experience.

At the running tackle is burly Anthony Arcaro, 200 pounds of "natural ability," according to Wood. "Though only a junior, Arcaro is a veteran and Kulley combine to make tackle the strongest position on the line."
Behind Arcaro are juniors Mike Knorr, Allan Dey and George Markson. All three, said Wood, are rugged, all are relatively fast for the position and all have good possibilities. On occasion, Dey was used last year to spell Arcaro. Knorr and Markson played well on the junior varsity level and all three, Wood contended with some relish, are hard-nosed players.

Guards: At strong side guard Wood indicates that it looks like Ed Pemanski, a returning letterman. Ed is 5-11, 180 pounds.

A second candidate with possibilities, said Wood, is Peter Briggs, a short, stocky senior. But the dark horse for the position is a junior, Carl DeCalvacante.

DeCalvacante was used in spots last season on defense but Wood would like to work him into an offensive slot. A weight man on the track team, DeCalvacante is big and strong and despite his size is very mobile. "He's real good," said Wood adding, "He's so big, the kids call him 'The Whale'."

For weak side guard, acknowledged by Wood as probably the weakest position at the start of practice, Wood is counting on Norman White to fill the gap. White does not have much beef, but Wood said he had a "tremendous" amount of interest in the sport. He recounted that White broke his arm last year yet did not miss a single practice.

Also under consideration are Dominic Mastroianni, a heavy-set senior, and Dave Nicoll, a junior without varsity experience. Wood reported he would like to use White on offense because he would prefer to use Mastroianni on defense.

Center: The probable starter is senior Jim Floyd, who, though he did not earn a letter, has three years' experience at the position. "Jim passes the ball well and blocks well," said Wood.

"Rick Stewart would probably do just as well at center, but Stewart is definitely going to be a defensive man," Stewart turned in an A-1 job on defense last year as a sophomore and is one of two junior lettermen on the squad. Glenn Christiansen, a junior, a capable performer on the jayvee squad last fall, is a third alternative.

Overall: Pretty Good. Asked to give his opinion overall, of the line, Wood replied, "Overall, I think it's pretty good. We have untied situations at strong side end and weak side guard."

"With the exception of Floyd, Bocanuso and White, the line has experience. It will probably be a little lighter than last year's but not by much. Another thing, we have a little more time to practice this year to work out any problems."

here's one way to achieve better grades in school

good study lighting

Because good homework skills are vitally important to scholastic achievement, your child deserves his own well lighted private study area. Planned lighting lets a student relax, concentrate better. Homework is finished faster, more accurately, with less nerve and eye fatigue.

Study areas tips: Provide a flat-top desk or table with a non-glossy top that is light in color. Place the desk or table against a wall (never facing a window). Eye position should be at least 14 inches above the work surface. Books and other reading matter should be propped up about 30 degrees toward the eyes. The study lamps should provide at least 150-watts of light.

DAVIS TO AID HARVARD
To Bolster Tackle Slot, A solid bid to help the Harvard football team recoup some of its losses through graduation is Dave Davis, one of the most promising sophomores in Harvard's pre-season football camp. Son of Mrs. Catherine Davis of 267 Hawthorne Avenue, he is one of five sophomores listed on the Crimson's second varsity unit for the first week of pre-season practice.

A starter at tackle for the Harvard freshmen last fall, Davis will help fill a problem spot in the Crimson line, which has only two lettermen returning at this position. Coach John Kovcsics rates Davis as a "fine defensive prospect." "We need help here," says Kovcsics. "Davis is one of our main hopes."

The 6-3, 226 pound Princeton recent learned his football at Princeton County Day, and went on to captain the Phillips Exeter football team and was also a New England All-Prep selection. While at Exeter he was twice an All-New England choice in lacrosse. Princeton will get a chance to see Davis in action when Harvard plays Princeton here on November 7.

PIS SENIOR TO TOKYO
Qualifies for Olympics. The world was a different place for 16-year old Lesley Bush, Princeton High School senior. On Friday, she had missed by the razor-thin edge of one dive qualifying for a place on the three-meter team which will represent the United States next month in Tokyo.

Eventually, 20-year old Linda Cooper of Santa Ana, Calif., won the trials, with 23-year old Barbara Talmage of HARVARD TACKLE: Princetonian Dave Davis, a sophomore at Harvard, is an excellent prospect to make the Crimson's football team this fall.

Phoenix, Ariz., the runner-up, but Lesley placed third with 497.95 points in a field of eight finalists.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bush of 244 Dodds Lane, Lesley and her family have lived in Princeton for two years since moving here from Arizona. It was there that she took up driving seriously at age 11.

Her championships include the Junior Nationals at both one and 10 meters. Diving ability runs high in the family. Four years ago, a Valley Road School student, is Junior Olympic Champion of nine southwestern states.

Lesley's vacation will last a few weeks longer because of her feat. She's heading for Colorado to practice with the U.S. Olympic team, and thence to Tokyo. It will be mid-October before she has to step down to classroom chores.

"SAVE THE RAILROAD"
Commuters Fight for Trains. "Best railroad equipment east of Chicago," is the way one Princeton commuter describes the Reading Railroad's Wall Streeter and Crusader, which each day carry a number of businessmen to New York and back. But, if the Reading has its way, the end of the line is in sight for both trains.

No commuter who is about to have his favorite iron horse snatched from under him takes to the idea placidly. He fights. The railroad fights back—and usually wins, says another Princeton-New York rider.

The commuters have formed a group called "The Committee," and it is going after the ICC, Interstate Commerce Commission, tooth and nail and questionnaire to keep the trains running. All objections must be in the ICC's hands by September 17.

The Reading, however, has posted notices that all passenger service to New York will be discontinued October 2. It claims that the trains are losing money.

Most of the controversy seems to be over just what the Reading's bookkeeping proves if anything. Says an anti-Reading lawyer: "Railroad accounting is as modern as a locomotive's cowcatcher. It's just about impossible to say what train does or does not make money."

"For example," he continues, "how much does the Reading charge off track usage against a 50-car freight and a much shorter and a lighter Wall Streeter? Or a vice-president's salary? Proportionately?"

Whatever the method, it is the form of accounting okayed by the ICC, says Sidney R. Spencer, the Reading's passenger traffic manager (who, as one daily rider says, "at this rate soon may not have any passengers whose traffic he can manage.") And, says Mr. Spencer, "The trains do not pay their own expenses."

Schedule for the contest between the commuters and "them," the Reading officials who would permanently red light the Wall Streeter and the Crusader, includes the September 17 date for filing objections, public hearings probably in October, a final decision probably by the end of this year. And, according to a couple of dolefully unoptimistic commuters, a final trip probably by the end of April when "at least it will be Spring."

Subject, of course, to the usual change without notice.

By JOHN F. BERNARD

Trees, in case you didn't know, are important in some areas of the world for reasons other than shade and hammock-hanging possibilities.

In parts of Africa, for example, strands of hair and nails from an ill person are inserted into a tree. If the tree remains well, it is assumed that the human patient will enjoy recovery.

In some areas of India if a bachelor wants to marry a widow he is first married to a tree. When the tree is cut down, the man becomes an eligible bachelor.

A tree may give good shelter from the rain . . . yet it is the poorest place to seek it. Insurance is like that, too. Often the policy which seems like the best protection . . . may be the poorest. Let experts like STURHAN, DICKSONSON & BERNARD, 15 Chambers Street, give you sound, safe, sensible advice . . . before it's too late. Phone 921-6880 . . . ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

"RIGHTEOUS INDIGNATION" STARTED MODERN HEATING BUSINESS Specialist Says "Electricity Outperforms Everything"

"I went downstair and kicked the tank . . . I was that mad!"
 "Then when I tried to cool off I discovered I had every right to be indignant and nobody but myself to blame if I didn't do something about it."

"That was in 1961. My heating system wasn't a year old and it had given nothing but trouble."
 "Because I'm an electrician I'd been hearing a lot about complete electrical home heating systems as the thing of the future. Courses were available and I studied up fast . . . then I tore into my house."

"Yes, I was my own first customer . . . and like all the others who've come to me since, I couldn't be more satisfied."
 "After all, when it comes to electricity, I'm the guy who could fix up anything that went wrong. But that's the second beauty of electricity for heating; nothing has gone out of whack. As I tell my customers, electrical heating is virtually maintenance-free."

"What's the first 'beauty' about electrical heating?"
 "Comfort!"
 "You don't know what a difference electrical heat can make until you've lived in it. No drafts, no hot spots, no wait for the warm-up to start."

According to the spokesman who now leads a thriving firm: "In addition to home installations, there is growing industrial and commercial demand, too."

He concludes: "I go along with the belief that in ten more years at least half of the new houses being built in America will be heated by electricity."

QUALITY STRESSED
 Nearly one third of the dwellings now equipped with electrical heating systems in the United States are the so-called "conversions."

The firm is explained to mean not merely the change-over to electrical heating equipment . . . but the pairing of the most modern heating method with a standard of insulation that complements it. Certified electrical contractors adhere to a rigid set of standards that the home improvement financing customarily gets favorable consideration.

UP-DATE... ANTIQUE HEATING NOW!

This elegant relic reminds us of bygone days. Be elegant, better your days ahead with total electric home heating.

QUESTION BOX

Q. What is the difference between a Gold Medal Home and a Bronze Medal Home?
 A. "Gold Medal Home" means that the house is "total electric." In addition to electricity as the sole source of fuel, all appliances are electric. Exact lists of building specifications and appliance lists are available from your utility company or electric contractor. The "Medallion" emblem always means quality of construction and installation . . . but the number of units in a "Bronze" home is somewhat less extensive. Actual inspection of a dwelling is made to make sure the specifications have been adhered to before the award is made.

Q. What can be done to make an electrical heating installation in an old house almost as good as it would be in a new electrical house?
 A. You don't have to settle for "almost as good as." Old houses that are converted according to the standards of Gold Medal Home are fully entitled to the award. Incidentally, in addition to the plaque you will get a very important piece of paper, too: a certificate. It is strongly recommended that you store this with your deed . . . since it's worth money in a re-sale sense. It's a proof of quality.

Q. Why is it said electrical heating systems outlast others?
 A. It is commonly stated that an electrical heating system can be expected to last the lifetime of the house because there are few or no moving parts, nothing to wear out.

Q. Are electrical baseboards the best type of installation?
 A. They are very popular and justifiably so . . . but only an electrical contractor can really tell which type will serve best in a given room. It may well be that specific room design will indicate ceiling cable for one room electrical baseboards for the others.
